The National Labour Inspectorate supervises and provides important service to ensure legality in the world of work.

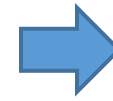

It is the institution to which workers and companies can turn for the protection of rights and legality at work.

It is the reference point for the correct information, interpretation and application of labour and social insurance legislation (INPS, INAIL...)

Eve and coordination of other labour supervisory bodies. It coordinates with the ASL on occupational safety.

Authorisations of the protection of working mothers and minors

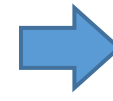

Authorisations to recruit foreign workers

Assistance to formalize telematic resignation

Validation of resignation in the first year of marriage or with children up to 3 years

authorisations and ratings for the protection of employment (steam boilers, remote controls)

Seasonal foreign workers have the same rights.
